

Biblical Languages

The Seminary strives to provide "a thoroughly educated ministry"; and, recognizing that the Holy Scriptures were given by God in Hebrew and Greek, we believe a knowledge of the original languages, although not essential, may certainly prove valuable and useful. However, it should be remembered that: the course at the Seminary is not full-time, students may well have other important family and church responsibilities, and abilities vary considerably when it comes to the study of languages. The Seminary will therefore provide a basic introduction to Hebrew and Greek, recommend books and courses for further study, and guide students in the best use of approved Dictionaries and Lectionaries.

Worthy of note are the words Henry Martin:

"May I be taught to remember that all other studies are subservient to the great work of ministering holy things to immortal souls!"
